

THE UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

Mel & Enid Zuckerman
College of Public Health

Mel and Enid Zuckerman College of Public Health University of Arizona

HPS 696L Health Behavior Health Promotion Seminar

Catalog Description: This is a doctoral-level seminar that includes lectures and discussions led by local, national and international guest speakers on current topics in health behavior health promotion (HBHP) field and the broader field of public health. (1 unit)

Course Topics:

- Guest speakers will present on various topics related to public health

Course Objectives: During this course, students will:

- Gain exposure to the content, methodology, and health theories that are each essential components to HBHP research.
- Stimulate curiosity and broaden knowledge of the field of HBHP and public health in general.

Learning Outcomes (Competencies Obtained): Upon completion of this course students will be able to:

1. Describe and critique research through written assignments on health behavior health promotion
2. Describe and critique topics orally (respectful expression) in public health with particular lens from a health behavior health promotion perspective
3. Identify and interact on forming new research themes or questions of investigation in health behavior health promotion scholarship.